Chosen by more than a dozen judges from a pool of hundreds of nominees, the Lifetime Achievement Awards recognize individuals who have made a long-lasting impact on the legal tech industry and paved the way for the innovation we see today. David Greetham will be honored alongside two other recipients in the provider category—Mary Mack, CEO of EDRM, and Heena Bhambhani, GDS Assurance Managed Services Leader at Ernst and Young.

A Digital Forensics and eDiscovery Pioneer

In his more than three decades in the legal industry (and counting), David developed revolutionary technology, served as an expert witness in countless cases, and helped grow and strengthen the forensics and eDiscovery community. Some of the highlights from his career include:

- His invention of Remlox™, a first-of-its-kind, forensically sound remote collection tool that has been used in 39 countries. Upon its release in 2008, Remlox fundamentally changed forensic collection workflows worldwide, enabling secure and defensible collections to be conducted remotely. It is one of nine patents David received across a career of prolific innovation.
- His expert witness testimony in more than 100 matters across seven countries. This includes testimony in Coleman Holdings v. Morgan Stanley, a landmark eDiscovery case with a $1.5 billion verdict that involved data spoliation. As an expert witness, he speaks to digital forensics analysis, information governance, and eDiscovery methodologies.

- His commitment to advancing the field of digital forensics and eDiscovery, providing in-person trainings at institutions such as the Executive Office of the President at the White House, Harvard University, and New Scotland Yard. He also serves as an Executive Advisor to the Electronic Discovery Reference Model \(EDRM\), a leading eDiscovery industry organization.
